1. Introduction

The Chief Executive Emer O’Gorman

I am delighted to present Wicklow County Council's Gender Pay Gap Report for 2024. This marks our second year of reporting on such an important issue, following our first report issued in December 2022 in accordance with the Gender Pay Gap Information Act of 2021. Addressing gender pay differences is crucial, not only in the workplace but also in wider society. This report highlights our current status and the changes made over the past year.

People are at the core of our organisation and our employees are fundamental in our service delivery throughout our county.

Wicklow County Council continue to strive to promote and sustain an inclusive organisational culture which provides equality of opportunity and where every employee feels valued.

As a local authority, we are at the forefront of delivering services to our citizens.

Our organisation is a place where all employees have the same opportunities for recognition and career development and are treated fairly and equitably at work.

We continue to be committed to addressing workplace barriers to equality, supporting diversity and creating an open and inclusive workplace community.

Many equality, diversity and inclusion initiatives and supports are already in place, and we will continue to work in this area, but there is always room for improvement.

The gender pay gap figures does not represent equal pay, all employees of equal grade who work with Wicklow County Council are paid the same, regardless of gender. This report identifies the percentage of the different genders in higher and lower paid grades and it determines the mean and median gender pay gap.

These insights will help us develop action plans, and we will continue to monitor trends and collaborate with our colleagues across the sector to share best practices.

3. Gender Pay Gap Reporting

Gender pay gap reporting 2024

The Gender Pay Gap Information Act, 2021 requires organisations with over 150 employees to report on their Gender Pay Gap. 2024 is the second year that organisations will have to report on their Gender Pay Gap. Organisations are asked to select a 'snapshot' date in the month of June. The reporting period is the 12-month period immediately preceding and including the snapshot date, which for local authorities, the snapshot date is 30 June 2024. Organisations have six months to prepare their calculations, before reporting six months later during December 2024. The information must be published on the employer's website or in some other way that is accessible to all its employees and to the public.

Who is included?

All persons employed by the employer on the snapshot date, including employees not rostered to work on that date and employees on leave. The mean and median figures must also be given separately for part-time and temporary employees.

What do we mean by the gender pay gap?

The Gender Pay Gap calculates the percentage difference between the average earnings of males and females irrespective of their role. The Gender Pay Gap is not the same as equal pay. Employment Equality legislation provides for equal pay for like work. All male and female employees in the local government sector are paid equally for work that is the same or similar or for work of equal value, therefore this report does not examine equal pay. Rates of pay within the sector are agreed through national wage agreements negotiated regularly between employers and staff representatives. Most employees are paid according to an incremental salary scale and the salary ranges for various roles are available on the local government jobs website at www.localgovernmentjobs.ie

Mean and Median Gender Pay Gap

MEAN GENDER PAY GAP
This shows the % difference between the average hourly rate of pay for males and average hourly rate of pay for females $\frac{(\text{average male hourly rate}) - (\text{average female hourly rate})}{\text{average male hourly rate}} \times 100$

This shows the % difference between the median hourly rate of pay for males and median hourly rate of pay for females $\frac{(\text{median of male hourly rates}) - (\text{median of female hourly rates})}{\text{median of male hourly rates}} \times 100$

The mean is the average. It is calculated by getting the difference between the average hourly rate of pay for males and the average hourly rate of pay for females (male hourly rate minus female hourly rate), expressed as a percentage of the male hourly rate. If this figure is negative, the average hourly rate of females is higher than the average hourly rate of males on the snapshot date. If this figure is positive, the average hourly rate of males is higher than the average hourly rate of females on the snapshot date.

The median is the figure that falls in the middle of a range where the salary of all relevant employees is listed, from the lowest to the highest. This can provide a more accurate representation of the 'typical' differences in pay.

It is useful to look at both the mean and median figures, as each one can tell us something different about the underlying factors affecting the pay gap. For example, a small number of higher paid employees can impact the mean figure and if this is the case, the median figure may be more representative of difference between what a male and a female is paid. If there is a significant difference between an organisation's mean and median pay gap, this may indicate that the data is impacted either by the presence of very low earners (making the mean lower than the median) or by a group of higher earners (making the mean higher than the median). It is also important to remember that this report uses data on a snapshot date in June. Gender pay gaps can fluctuate from month to month and across quartile pay bands, depending on changes to headcount. However, headline figures will give a good indication of the differences between average earning between males and females.

Quartile Pay Bands

Dividing employees into four more-or-less equal groups (or quartiles) with pay graded from lowest to highest helps us to examine pay across different levels of the organisation. Organisations must report on the percentage of employees who fall within the lower, lower middle, upper middle and upper quartile hourly pay bands. In order to group employees into these Quartile Pay Bands, the organisation lists all employees from lowest to highest, based on their hourly rates. The employees are then divided into four equal groups or Quartiles based on this - lower, lower middle, upper middle and upper. The employer then shows the proportion of male and female employees in each quartile as a percentage e.g. percentage of male employees in the lower quartile and percentage of female employees in the lower quartile (and so on).

Bonus and benefit-in-kind

Figures must also be provided for bonus payments or benefit-in-kind payments if these apply. Bonus payments do not apply within the local government sector.

Benefit in Kind may arise in certain circumstances, such as where some professional fees are paid by the employer.

Factors that can have an impact on the gender pay gap

As mentioned, this report does not look at equal pay. Every employee, regardless of gender is paid equally for work that is the same or similar or for work of equal value. However, differences between what employees are paid can be impacted by a number of complex factors including:

- Occupational segregation – some job categories or occupations may have traditionally attracted more females than males or vice versa.
- Working patterns – full-time and part-time work. It may be that more females than males seek part-time work or career breaks and although this does not impact on their hourly rate of pay, it may impact on choices around career progression.

- Length of service – incremental pay increases may mean that new joiners are paid less than more experienced employees.
- Time of year – temporary or seasonal workers may be recruited for different roles which may attract a different rate of pay.
- Gender breakdown of senior roles at higher salaries – a small number of higher paid employees can affect the average figures.
- Gender breakdown of lower paid roles – a large number of lower paid employees can affect the average figures.

If an organisation reports a positive gender pay gap, it does not mean that females are paid less than males for doing the same job, but it does show that, on average, males occupy higher paid roles than females.

If an organisation reports a negative gender pay gap, it does not mean that males are paid less than females for doing the same job, but it does indicate that, on average, females occupy higher paid roles than males.

The larger the positive or negative pay gap is, the more marked the differences in hourly rates of pay will be and the more males or females proportionally working in either higher or lower paid roles within the organisation.

4. Our Figures

Mean and Median Gender Pay Gap - all employees

Note: 57%:43% (male: female) is the gender breakdown of all employees on 30 June 2024.

The Mean Gender Pay Gap shows that on average, females are paid -3.37% more than males. The Median Gender Pay Gap shows that the median rate of pay for females is -6.90% higher than the median rate of pay for males.

Looking at the distribution of employees across the four Quartile Pay Bands helps us examine pay at different levels of the organisation. These Quartile Pay Bands show the distribution of male and female employees by Pay Band across Wicklow County Council. (Wicklow County Council lists all employees from lowest to highest, based on their hourly rates, then divides this into four equal Pay Bands or Quartiles - lower, lower middle, upper middle and upper. We then shows the proportion of male and female employees in each quartile). The split for each of the 4 quartiles shown above is broadly in line with our workforce demographics of 57% male and 43% female . For there to be no Gender Pay Gap you would expect to see the workforce demographics reflected more closely in each quartile. There is a higher proportion of females in Band 1, reflecting that there are proportionately more females at lower grades. There is also a slightly higher proportion of females in the Band 4, reflecting that there are proportionately more females in higher grades, however a 50.45%:49.55% (female: male) gender breakdown in senior grades is to be welcomed and reflects progress on gender balance in senior roles. Both more females the lower grades and fewer males at higher grades can affect the mean and median pay gaps

Mean and Median Gender Pay Gap - Part-time employees

Wicklow County Council Gender Pay Gap 2024 Part-time employees for the reporting period to 30 June 2024
MEAN GENDER PAY GAP	MEDIAN GENDER PAY GAP
2.03%	18.65%

Approximately 26% of all our employees on 30 June were working part-time. Of these 49.8% are male and 50.2% are female. Factors influencing the pattern of part-time employees across Wicklow County Council include a range of flexible work options for part-time work, which, while available to all employees, have a greater take-up of in administrative and clerical job categories. Another factor is job categories where part-time work is an occupational feature of the role, including the fire service, library service, community wardens and caretakers for burial grounds.

Mean and Median Gender Pay Gap - Temporary employees

Wicklow County Council Gender Pay Gap 2024 Temporary employees for the reporting period to 30 June 2024
MEAN GENDER PAY GAP	MEDIAN GENDER PAY GAP

These contracts include temporary/seasonal employees such as lifeguards, community wardens and general operatives, as well as graduate engineers, veterinary inspectors, technicians and drivers/machinery operators.

Public bodies are required to set out in a manner that is accessible to the public in its strategic plan an assessment of the human rights and equality issues it believes to be relevant to its functions and purpose and the existing or proposed policies, plans and actions to address those issues. Furthermore, public bodies are required to report annually on developments and achievements in that regard in its annual report in a manner that is accessible to the public.

Wicklow County Council acknowledges the commonality of purpose stated in both the “Duty” and Gender Pay Gap reporting requirements and the publication of this report serves to underline and support the three-step approach advocated by the IHREC i.e., Assess, Address and Report.
